Academic Integrity at UB and this Course

- Honest completion of work is central to university design.
  - Instructors have to assess what each student genuinely learns.
- Serious violation of trust if the work you present does not represent what you have learned.
- UB has an Office of Academic Integrity and a specific policy for handling academic dishonesty (https://academicintegrity.buffalo.edu/).
  - Don’t get in trouble because you “didn’t know.” Not an excuse.
  - Sanctions range from warning to expulsion.
  - Centralized records are kept on student academic conduct.
- Every department or course may have different standards.
  - In this course, important things to know to remain academically honest include…
  - Repercussions in this course and in the larger profession include…
